Teaching You Thrift

Practice makes perfect. Schoolmasters of today as well as yesterday constantly repeat that truth. Pupils learn by applying

Application of that principle to our everyday habits proves its practical help. We learn by practicing, whether it be a good habit or a bad habit.

This bank teaches you thrift by leading you to practice it. The lesson is easily learned once it is begun. To become perfect in it requires constant practice. A savings account is the most consistent method of practicing thrift.

Training Little Children

ARTICLE XLV By Mrs. Katherine Crurch Solomons

The routine duties of the wife and mother are the same in practically all homes. Food has to be purchased and prepared; the house has to be kept clean and in order; there is shopping to be done, also sewing. mending and washing—a big item in families with young children—and there are the children.

Very often the mother would seen to have little time or strength to spend other than in attention to the children's actual physical care and requirements, and yet by a little wise thinking and arranging she can start many plays and occupations which will not only give the children pleasure and teach them how to do things but result in a quieter. easier and more joyous task for her-

The Home Atmosphere One of the most helpful factors in Ray. the harmonious d velopment of mother and child life is a right attitude of mind. It is, of course, most desirable that it be one of contentment and peace; but too often mothers, in addition to the work of housekeeping and the bearing and rearing of children, are obliged to contend with problems of sickness and family disagreements. However, it she can meet such situations with intelligence, courage and self-control, she will create a home atmosphere which will be measureless in its influence. The Yard.

A yard can be made an ideal playground at a moderate expense. Playing in sand appeals more than anything else to children of three and four years. It will engross and keep them occupied for hours at a time. Therefore, the first thing is to put in the yard is a sand box. This can be done by nailing four boards together, and partly embedding them in the ground. Babies should not be allowed to play by themselves in the sand until they are old enough to know that they should not put it in their months. And none of the children should be permitted to throw sand, because of the danger to the eyes.

Discarded cooking utensils and a few tin spoons give the children an opportunity to imitate mother's fascinating operations in the kitchen. In warm weather they can have water to mix with the sand. This makes the play all the more real and engrossing.

Older children find many more things to do with sand. They pile it up and make hills out of it, dig holes and fill them with water, or make representations of the many things that children love to play and think about.

Pretty patterns can be made in damp sand by drawing with a stick, by pressing stones, pebbles or seeds into it, or by using such objects as grooved shells or the rim of a cup. Gardening is one of the most wholesome and healthful ways in which children can be emptoyed. Each child may well have a space in the yard allotted to him for planting and Wallace. Clerks, Willie Julian, J. A. tending a little garden of his very Bussell.

All kinds of outdoor games can be played in the yard and the children can romp to their hearts' content. For the young children, games with a rubber ball or with bean bags are

Play Materials. Almost all children have wooden locks of one kind or another to play with and they scarcely need to be shown what to do with them. They ove to make such things as houses. trains, trolley cars, buildings, bridges and furniture. Any materials that lend themselves to representation of this kind are a delight to children. Kindergarten tables (round, square, oblong and triangular pieces of wood of the dimension of one inch) can be used for representing many things; also colored sticks and slats of dirferent lengths, and seeds of different varieties. A catalogue of kindergarten materials will be sent upon request by Milton Bradley Company. Springfield. Mass., or by E. Steiger & Co., 49 Murray St., New York. In the same way, children enjoy ardson. representing objects in .187, and by drawing and painting. Clay work, however is tetter left for school by mothers who have much to do, as work in this material requires considerable attention and direction.
